

The AGCO Agriculture Foundation COVID-19 Aid Program

2020 YEAR IN REVIEW

In 2020, the AGCO Agriculture Foundation (AAF) launched its COVID-19 Aid Program in response to the global pandemic's intensifying impacts on poverty and food insecurity. Through dedicated resources, the AAF supported non-profits around the world working to prevent and relieve hunger and drive sustainable agriculture development in vulnerable communities.

Our Reach

$450,000

Total 2020 AAF Donation

$350,000

In grants donated to 13 local non-profits

50,000

Vulnerable communities supported through the Aid Program

210,000

Meals provided with a $100,000 donation to the United Nations Food Programme

9,937

Meals donated through the WFP's SharetheMeal Campaign

Local Coverage

With support to >1,000 small-scale farmers and >30,000 families reached

"The AGCO Agriculture Foundation is committed to supporting vulnerable communities as COVID-19 deepens the effects of hunger and poverty."

Through the COVID-19 Aid Program, our funding supported relief efforts and initiatives around the world to reach those who were most impacted by food insecurity and health needs."

Metti Richenhagen,
Managing Director, AGCO Agriculture Foundation.

RECOGNITION

The AAF received an "International Case" award during the 2020 CSR Distinctions (Distinciones RSC) awards. The award honored the AAF's support of food security and health needs in South America during the pandemic.

INITIATIVES

In partnership with Self Help Africa, the AAF launched a new sustainable poultry production project in the Republic of Zambia, Africa.

The project is designed to empower 150 marginalized poultry farmers and strengthen the poultry sector against the impacts of the pandemic. Read the full article by visiting the AGCO Newsroom

Regional Coverage

The AAF provided funding to support the COVID-19 relief efforts of 13 non-profits in North and South America, Asia, Africa and Europe, including:

Learn more about the AGCO Agriculture Foundation's work and grant funding at www.AGCOFoundation.org

